The board received a tentative report of a committee, consisting of Dr. C. W. Kent, Messrs. W. A. Bowles and John T. West, recently constituted to report on the feasibility of reducing the number of superintendency divisions by consolidating two or more of the old divisions, where deemed advisable, last night substitude a lengthy report. ### Investigate Charges.

The next subject to be taken up was the adoption of an eligible list of high school text books and supplementary books for use in the schools, and the matter of immending the requirements of the high schools as now constituted. The most interesting matter to come before the board will be the submission and consideration of the report of State Superintendent Southall and Secretary and consideration of the report of state Superintendent Southall and Secretary Frank P. Bront, of their investigation of the charges filed against Superintendent Charles W. Lucas, of Radford, and his counter charges against Principal Vernon J. Hill, of that city's schools, Superintendent Lucas is charged with incompetency and with management prejudicial to the interests of the schools. The nature of his counter-charges against Mr. Hill are not stated, the report declaring that no evidence was offered to sustain them. The report in the case is nothing more than the record of the testimony taken on the charges against the superintendent, and is voluminous. There is no recommendation attached to the report. Neither the complainant or defendant will be represented before the board by counsel nor in person.

RIVER AND HARBOR

CILL PASSES SENATE

(From Our Regular Correspondent)
WASHINGTON. D. C., March 1.—The Senate passed the river and harbor bill this afternoon, practically as it left the Senate committee. It received several amendments in committee, which increased the aggregats of the bill by about $2,000,000. Senator Martin's amendment, increasing the appropriation for James River to $200,000 from $150,000, as fixed by the House, was adopted, as were the other Virginia amendments which he proposed. There is a good chance that these will be agreed to in conference committee and finally adopted by the two houses.

Bacon's Sarcasm.

Mr. McComas proposed an amendment giving preference to soldlers of the "war of the rebeillon" in the matter of the transfer of railway clerks to the regular clerical service.

"Make it soldlers of the Civil War," suggested Mr. Bacon, adding: "It is more courteous."

The change was made, and the amend-courteous."

The change was made, and the amendment agreed to.

The Senate agreed to conference reports on the military academy and agricultural department appropriation bills.

The report on the agricultural appropriation bill showed that the Senate conferees had receded from the Senate amendment requiring bimonthly reports on the cotton crop. Mr. Bacon read a telegram from President Jordan, of the Southern Cotton Growers' Association, urging the importance of more frequent reports, and himself dwelt upon the wisdom of the amendment. He said, however, that he appreciated the pertinacious and unyielding opposition of the House, and that the Senate could not do otherwise than yield. He attributed this opposition to the Agricultural Department, saying that subordinates and not the head of that department had haunted the Capitol to defeat the legislation. He remarked that it was the duty of executive officials to execute the laws, and if they could not do so, they should be required to retire from office.

The Philippine import tariff bill was passed, and also several bills of minor importance. At the night session the sindry civil appropriation bill was considered.

Soldiers and Senators.

Messrs. Balley and Warren entered into a colloquy in witten the Wyoming senator took his antagonist to task for calling private soldiers "hirelings." Mr. Balley replied that he had very little respect, for any army private in time of peace, but said he thought he should be better paid than he is. Mr. Warren remarked that as much as their services are worth, but others are paid a great deal more. If we could scale the wages of senators, I would be in favor of a readjustment."

"I am glad," said Mr. Warren, "to hear that the senator holds the Senato in as low estimate as he does the army,"
"No, but some of the senators," replied Mr. Balley, who proceeded to disavow any intention of reflecting upon the Senate.
